Here's the exchange I had with Emily (below). I don't want to leave Robyn with the impression that issues surrounding this proposed use have been resolved.

Emily: I'm currently on a detail in the Regional Office and I guess the coordination we did regarding the Jamestown S'klallam aquaculture project came up in a meeting with Robyn Thorson. My supervisor asked me about it and I told her I'd check in with you for an update. How is that going? I know we finished our S7 consultation, but where are you with the other coordination with the Tribe and the Corps? I hope it's all going smoothly!

Me: ACE is still completing the Environmental Assessment. We await its completion and the decision document.

Emily: Ah, OK. And then, what are your next steps?

Me: JST will need to get a lease from DNR and their Clallam County permit required an MOU between JST, Audubon, and the Refuge for monitoring prior to implementation.

Emily: OK. Thank you! Sounds like the primary issues around use of the bay, on refuge lands, have been resolved then. I think that is what Robyn would like to know.
