We are currently working with the Oil and gas industry to monitor a polar bear den next to the access road to a drill site. The mother was seen out with the cub on the 18th and remains close to the den. So far so good... here are some pics.

Thanks! Only one? And, of course, RIGHT next to the equipment! (Shaking my head). CAY

Yup, just one cubby.. the whole reason we have such a good eye on these two is that the mother put her den in right next the the road. The oilfield people saw her go in. We've been expecting her to pop out about now. They shut the road down and are helicoptering personnel in so as not to disturb the bears until the little one gets used to the big wide world and they both wander away. Here's hoping for the best outcome... I'll keep ya posted.
